The screenshot above is the updated cart page, and the previous version is at the top of the page. The main rationale behind this change is that I would like to allow users to make multiple appointments instead of restricting them to one appointment (of each type) at a time. Thus, I need to display the appointments differently in the table so that all information can be viewed and accessed easily on the same page. I also added an appointment counter at the top to remind users how many appointments one has more directly.
